18 MEN ARE ENTOMBED BY MINE EXPLOSION

DISASTER AT COAL MINE NEAR CHARLESTON, W. VA.

BLAST WAS SO HEAVY THAT IT
WRECKED BUILDINGS ON SURFACE
SOME 35 TO 40 MINERS ESCAPE
THROUGH ENTRIES ON SIDE HILL

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 26. — (UP)—Revised figures telephoned to the state mining department here today said 18 men were entombed by an explosion in mine No. 5 of the Kingston Pocahontas Coal Company at Kingston, Fayette county, early today.

Rescue squads have entered the mine through two shafts, one on the Coal river side and the other on the Paint creek side—and are working towards each other, the department was advised.

The first crews to enter found fire raging but it was extinguished and the rescue work was pushed forward.

Cause of the explosion has not yet been learned, department officials said, adding that 71 men were in the mine when the blast let go.

Bluefield, W. Va., Jan. 26. — The fate of 18 men entombed by an explosion in number five mine of the Kingston Pocahontas Coal Company, at Kingston, Fayette county, was undetermined today.

One body has been recovered and rescue crews were being mobilized under the direction of Robert M. Lambie, chief of the West Virginia department of mines, in efforts to reach the imprisoned men.

The explosion occurred late yesterday. Between 35 and 40 miners escaped through entries on the side hill opposite the main entry.

The body recovered was that of Frank Parker who was killed outright.

The mine normally employs 500 men. Sixty men were at work when the explosion occurred. Lambie said it was impossible, at this time, to tell how many men were imprisoned although he estimated 18.

The mine chief was unable to say what caused the explosion although he believed an accumulation of gas, ignited by a miner's torch, was responsible.

The mine is in an isolated section and several hours elapsed before rescue crews could be assembled.

Doctor and nurses were sent to the mine from here this morning.

The mine is one of the largest in Fayette county. Proctor Mallin, of New York City, is president of the operating company.

The entire populace was drawn to the main entry by the blast.

The detonation was heard for miles and the countryside was aroused.

The escape of some of the miners presented a strange sight as they emerged from the various entries, high on the hillside, their torch-lights flickering.

Bluefield, W. Va., Jan. 26.—Mine number five of the Kingston Pocahontas Coal Co., at Kingston, wrecked by an explosion this morning, gave up three bodies this afternoon.

Fifteen miners still are believed imprisoned beneath tons of rock and earth which hurled down when the explosion occurred.

Whether they are alive or dead is problematical.

The bodies were discovered by rescue crews who penetrated the mine from two shafts—one on each side of the mountain into which 71 men marched on the midnight shift last night.

The mine is of the tunnel and not the shaft type and the rescue crews, by digging from each entrance, hoped by nightfall to penetrate to where the remaining men are entombed.

Rescue work proceeded under hazardous conditions. Fire broke out and was extinguished. Then pockets of gas collected and it was necessary for members of the rescue crew to don gas masks and carry oxygen tank into the diggings.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined.

Cold Wave Hangs On Throughout Northwest Area

COEDS IN NIGHT CLOTHES FLEE FROM BURNING BUILDING

Belton, Texas, Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—Clad only in their night clothes, coeds of the Baylor Belton college were forced to flee from the burning Luther hall early today when the dormitory, housing about 250 girls, was destroyed by fire.

A checkup of the students revealed there was no loss of life, Dr. J. C. Hardy, president of the school, said, but firemen were searching the ruins to make sure there was no body there.

The coeds lost all of their belongings and were forced into the outdoors. The temperature was 20 degrees above zero.

TO INVESTIGATE CHARGE AGAINST GOVERNOR KOHLER

COURT TO PROBE THE ALLEGED CHARGE OF VIOLATING COR- RUPT PRACTICES ACT

SPECIAL COUNSEL NAMED BY AT- TORNEY GENERAL OF WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., Jan. 26.—(UP)—A court investigation of the charge that Governor Walter J. Kohler violated the state corrupt practices act in obtaining the gubernatorial nomination was authorized today by Attorney General John W. Reynolds.

Kohler, millionaire plumbing fixture manufacturer of Kohler, Wis., was elected on a regular republican ticket, defeating by a large majority two other candidates, Joseph D. Beck, LaFollette progressive, and Governor Fred R. Zimmerman, independent republican. Kohler was inducted into office two weeks ago.

Reynolds announced he had granted the petition of four LaFollette progressive leaders to institute special court proceedings in the name of the state. He appointed Walter J. Corrigan, Milwaukee, and Harold M. Wilkie, Madison, as special counsel to conduct the state's case.

The signers of the petition requesting permission to institute ouster proceedings against the governor were State Senator Glenn D. Roberts, Representative Alvin C. Reis, Philip F. LaFollette, son of the late Senator LaFollette, and William T. Evjue, all of Madison.

The petition charged that testimony taken in a secret investigation by Dane county superior court showed that Kohler had knowledge and consented to expenditures of more than $100,000 in his behalf. The corrupt practices act limits the personal campaign expenditures of a gubernatorial candidate to $4,000.

Kohler, in a sworn statement, listed his expenditures within the limit.

Reynolds' decision, pending for several weeks, was announced within 24 hours after resolutions had been introduced in both houses of the state legislature to authorize unlimited investigation not only of Kohler's expenditures but of Wisconsin elections as far back as 1924.

"My action does not determine guilt or innocence," Reynolds explained. "It merely authorizes an investigation in the circuit court. According to the statutes, upon the filing of such petition, it becomes my duty to determine whether it appears from the petition, or otherwise, that any provision of the corrupt practices act has been violated and whether sufficient evidence is obtainable to show that there is probable cause to believe that such proceeding may be successfully maintained."

"Since this petition was filed with me, I have carefully investigated the matter and I have come to the conclusion that various provisions of the corrupt practices act have been violated by Walter J. Kohler. I am convinced that, both under the facts and the law, there is probable cause to believe that this proceeding may be successfully maintained."

Believe Coolidge Will Not Veto Cruiser Bill If It Hastens Construction of Ships

PLAN TO BUILD FIVE CRUISERS A YEAR, FOR 3 YEARS

COOLIDGE IDEA IS TO AUTHOR- IZE BUILDING WITH NO TIME LIMIT

OPPOSITION IS EXPECTED TO LAUNCH FULL ATTACK ON BILL TODAY

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 26. — Although President Coolidge has energetically opposed the plan to hasten construction of the new cruisers, republican leaders in congress say he will not veto the bill on that account. They are going ahead with their plan to build five cruisers a year for the next 3 years, as provided by the pending bill.

Mr. Coolidge has only one outstanding friend for his plan to authorize cruiser construction with no time limit. The leaders say only opponents of the bill will vote for the amendment and they expect to defeat it easily.

The opposition was expected to launch its long delayed fight against the bill in full force today. The sole dissenting speaker thus far is Senator Borah of Idaho, who succeeded in arranging for adoption of an amendment expressing the sense of congress that the maritime law should be codified before the international disarmament conference meets in 1931.

The senate leaders accepted it because it will have no binding effect unless the president chooses to call an international conference for the purpose. Mr. Coolidge has indicated he considers the plan too idealistic for fruition although Secretary of State Kellogg has announced his support of the proposal.

Chairman Hale of the naval affairs committee says he expects a final vote before the end of next week.

The only other important matter scheduled for the day was consideration of the Walsh report by the senate public lands committee. Senator Walsh of Montana has prepared a report on the Salt Creek lease case and is seeking to have the committee adopt it.

The house took its usual week-end recess, being up with its calendar of business.

FRIENDS OF UNDERWOOD MOURN DEATH

FORMER DEMOCRATIC SENATOR FROM ALABAMA DIED YESTERDAY

FOR YEARS SOUTH REGARDED HIM AS PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER

Washington, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Friends of Oscar W. Underwood, former democratic senator from Alabama, today mourned his death. The former statesman died at 11:15 A. M. yesterday at his home, "Woodlawn," near Mt. Vernon, Va.

Underwood was for years regarded by the south as available for the presidency and the booming voice of Gov. W. W. Brandon of Alabama at the democratic convention in New York in 1924, repeating for 103 times "Alabama casts 24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood," made Underwood's name known throughout the country.

When news of the death was conveyed to the senate where Underwood was long a democratic leader, that body adjourned out of respect to his memory.

Underwood was 67 years old. He represented Alabama in the house from the 54th congress through the 64th and in the senate from 1915 to 1926.

His name will go down in history as a national figure chiefly for his authorship of the tariff act which bears his name. He also directed the forces behind the federal reserve act, the farm loan act, the Clayton anti-trust act and many other measures passed during the Wilson administration.

Statements praising his life and work poured forth from every source. President Coolidge, in a letter to Mrs. Underwood, said in part: "The character of his public service made all the country under obligations to him and his personality was such as endeared him to all who came in contact with him."

Underwood is survived by his widow, two sons and two brothers. Funeral services will be held on Monday.

SECRETARY OF STATE--WHO SHALL IT BE?

PRESSING PROBLEM ENGROSSES ATTENTION OF HERBERT HOOVER

PRESIDENT-ELECT TO RETURN SOON FROM FISHING TRIP

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 26.—One of the most pressing problems facing President-elect Hoover when he returns tomorrow from his three-day fishing expedition is selection of a secretary of state.

He still is seeking a man for this office, it is learned. His list of eligible, though weeded out somewhat, still contains several names. He has practically completed selection of the rest of the cabinet though some final details remain to be cleared up.

The president-elect and his party were out in their small boats again today, trailing their lines for sail-fish and other fighting varieties whose conquest furnishes real sport.

Picking a secretary of state, generally regarded as the most important cabinet post, has become a real job. Considerable pressure has been exerted from several quarters recently, especially editorially for selection of an outstanding man who will inspire national and international confidence.

The demand was provoked partly by indications that Hoover intended to be his own secretary of state and was considering appointment of a man thoroughly grounded in international affairs but who would follow closely the desires of the president.

Elimination of Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, a man of force and independence, from the field has been added proof to those who hold this view of Hoover's intention. Other factors easily might enter there, such as the need for Morrow to complete his work in Mexico City.

The result of the agitation may be a compromise. Selection of a man of independent mind, with large experience in the field of diplomacy, but with views coinciding generally with those of Hoover. Such a man need not be a "rubber stamp."

Attention is being directed more and more to Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to England, as a likely choice for the office.

Hoover will return tomorrow morning for a busy week. Fishermen are awaiting eagerly news of the president-elect's angling activities, of which the world has been kept in ignorance by a blanket of privacy.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Frank Barber, airmail pilot, and two passengers, missing for two days, were returned here unhurt today from Ogden Canyon, where their plane was forced down during a blizzard Thursday night.

Barber's two passengers were A. P. Barnes, Camden, Maine, and T. L. Pfeuger, San Francisco.

OKLAHOMA POLITICS ARE IN TURMOIL

MRS. MAMIE HAMMONDS IN CEN- TER OF POLITICAL REVOLT

FACES THE ACCUSATIONS MADE AGAINST HER AS GOVER- NOR'S SECRETARY

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 26.—(UP)—Mrs. Mamie Hammonds, center of Oklahoma's two-year old political revolt, faced her accusers today.

Mrs. Hammonds, diminutive but dominant confidential secretary to Henry S. Johnston, impeached and suspended governor, appeared as the chief witness in an inquiry which has turned Oklahoma's politics upside down.

Mrs. Hammonds appeared before 30 men constituting a house investigation committee climaxing three weeks of legislative investigation in which she has been branded as the political dictator of the state house.

Mrs. Hammonds' political career began two years ago when she was lifted from obscure activities in women's clubs and Ku Klux Klan auxiliaries of Okmulgee to become the governor's "right hand man."

Governor Johnston created for her the office of confidential secretary. The governor's subsequent refusal to dismiss her was the beginning of the political rebellion which terminated this week with his suspension.

Testimony offered the house investigating committee regarding Mrs. Hammonds has included the following allegations:

That she was "efficious" in the executive office; once in conference she told the governor she was running the job, warned him to keep his mouth shut and shook her fist in his face; she participated in patronage and passed money in a highway department deal.

She employed and dismissed workers in other departments to "juggle political influence; she boasted "if it were not for me, Johnston's administration would be on the rocks;" she once ordered a subordinate to get a legislator intoxicated to learn his political secrets.

Mrs. Hammonds was prepared to deny all the charges.

SECOND RAID ON CHICAGO UNDERWORLD

Chicago, Jan. 26.—(UP)—A second raid on Chicago's underworld, followed closely upon the arrest of 3,400 last weekend, brought 344 known police characters to police cells for identification today.

The raids, carried out simultaneously throughout the city, thwarted several robberies and virtually depopulated known haunts of Chicago criminals.

Federal agents also raided extensively throughout the night.

All of the 344 prisoners taken by police were held for questioning and will be put through the city's second large police show-up this week.

FISHING TRAWLER 4 DAYS OVERDUE

COLD AND SNOW IN FIVE DAYS TAKE 9 LIVES

SERIOUSLY CRIPPLE TRANSPORTATION CON- DITIONS

TEMPERATURES RANGE FROM 40 BELOW TO 10 BELOW

St. Paul, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Little relief was seen today in the north west from the severe cold wave and heavy snow which has prevailed for the past five days at the cost of nine lives and seriously crippled transportation conditions.

Temperatures ranged from 40 degrees below zero at Minnedosa, Canada, to 10 below at LaCrosse, Wis.

Devils Lake reported 28, Williston 26, Winnipeg 26, Moorhead and Duluth 22, and the Twin Cities 16.

The forecast for today and Sunday was "generally fair, continued cold, with a severe cold wave in the northeast portions."

Weather men said the temperature in southern Minnesota and Wisconsin would range about five to 10 degrees below zero tonight and between 10 and 20 degrees below in the north and northwest.

One death, that of Albert Tracy, 18, of near Linton, N. D., was added to the toll of eight. The youth's frozen body was found near his home after he failed to return from a visit to a neighbor's.

Highway crews attacked snow-blocked roads today in an effort to open up automobile traffic. Several bus routes were still closed although others were able to maintain service.

The present weather siege began on Tuesday with the worst storms of the winter.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 26.—(UP)—One-half of a mustache is practically valueless, Attorney General W. A. Smith wrote to L. Timm, freshman at Tabor college, Hillsboro, Kan., who appealed to the attorney general after fellow students shaved off half of his mustache.

5,000 CHINESE KILLED IN REVOLT OF COMMUNISTS

Peking, China, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Five thousand Chinese were estimated by American missionary reports today to have been killed in a communist uprising in southern Honan province.

The uprising was of wide extent. Hundreds of villages were destroyed.

Helpless aged people and children were killed by 10,000 men who went about burning and pillaging the villages. It was said.

The pillagers were made up largely of disbanded nationalist soldiers who were out of work. They were enrolled by communist leaders in a campaign to end the old regime.

Governor Johnston created for her the office of confidential secretary. The governor's subsequent refusal to dismiss her was the beginning of the political rebellion which terminated this week with his suspension.

Testimony offered the house investigating committee regarding Mrs. Hammonds has included the following allegations:

That she was "officious" in the executive office; once in conference she told the governor she was running the job, warned him to keep his mouth shut and shook her fist in his face; she participated in patronage and passed money in a highway department deal.

She employed and dismissed workers in other departments to "juggle" political influence; she boasted "if it were not for me, Johnston's administration would be on the rocks;" she once ordered a subordinate to get a legislator intoxicated to learn his political secrets.

Mrs. Hammonds was prepared to deny all the charges.

HEIRS OF THE LATE PAYNE WHITNEY GROW $10,000 RICHER EVERY HOUR!

An artist's idea of the golden shower that rains down upon the Whitney heirs. Upper left, Daniel and Payne Whitney Payson, who, with sister Sandra, will inherit the multiplying Whitney millions. Right, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, their mother.

On bright sunny days in New York City there may be seen in a park three children, aged three, two and one, who are growing richer at the amazing rate of $10,000 an hour.

These interesting children, whose fortune is increasing approximately $240,000 a day, are Daniel and Sandra and Payne Whitney Payson, grandchildren of Payne Whitney, who left the almost incredible estate of $194,328,514 when he died. They will become the eventual major heirs to a fortune of tremendous proportions.

If the present rate of increasing value of the estate continues, they undoubtedly will become the richest young people by inheritance in the world.

With about $60,000,000 of the Whitney estate bequeathed to public institutions, charity and friends, the remainder of some $135,000,000 was divided equally between a son of Whitney and Mrs. Charles Simpson Payson, mother of the three children, while the other goes to the widow.

However, little Daniel, Sandra and

Payne Whitney Payson are the ultimate living heirs, for they will receive all of their mother's money as well as their grandmother's trust fund.

Undoubtedly many will find interesting material for speculation as to how the children will be affected by their vast fortune. Meanwhile the youngsters continue to accompany their nurse maids to the park, where the two older ones laugh and play, just as other children do, as yet blissfully unaware of their tremendous wealth.

Paisley Shawls

The shawl known as Paisley was first made at Paisley, Scotland. The texture is usually woolen, though in some shawls there is a foundation of cotton. The garments are worn folded three-corner fashion. Nowadays they are used as furniture ornaments like piano covers. Their cost, when first made, about the beginning of the Nineteenth century, was about $75.

ANDRE RECALLS

BOYHOOD DAYS

Penney-Gwinn Corporation Representative Tells of Earlier Brainerd Days

VISITS OVER SUNDAY

To Journey to West Coast to Induce Grape Growers to Settle on Penney Farms

A distinguished visitor in Brainerd for a few days is Albert E. Andre, who spent his boyhood in this city. Mrs. Andre made his home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shoberg and lived in the third house south of Oak on Ninth street, moving into this place when Mr. Andre was six years old. The house is still standing.

At this time the streets were just trails through the woods, their back yard being full of pine trees and brush. Oak street was full of stumps where the trees had been cut, and it would have been impossible for one of our fast automobiles to make its way, and the only means of transportation at that time was by ox carts which meandered between the stumps and trees.

Mr. Andre attended the old wooden school on South Sixth street and at the age of 14, being one of the brightest students in the high school Professor J. A. Wilson gave him a third grade certificate to teach. He secured a rural school at Red Sand Lake, a few miles west of Brainerd where he taught for a year. During this time he made his home with Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Lindberg, parents of Axel Lindberg now residing on East Oak street, at whose home Mr. Andre is visiting while in the city.

After completing the term of school, Mr. Andre secured a position as a shoe store clerk at the Big Nine shoe store of which P. J. Walters was proprietor.

The home of Mrs. Andre was always open to visiting missionaries and ministers, especially from the Swedish Mission covenant, and it was not an uncommon occurrence for them to be entertaining one or more ministers overnight or for several days. Young Andre was a favorite of the ministers on these visits. On one occasion he made a trip to the Indian Trading Post at Mille Lacs Lake with Rev. E. A. Skogsborg (now of Minneapolis) at the age of 11. On this trip they secured permission from the old Indian chief to erect a missionary school on the reservation. During the winter the school was erected, young Andre again had the occasion to visit this school and spent two months with the Indians in company with the missionary.

During his employment at the Walters Shoe store, (at the age of 15) a missionary stopped in Brainerd while on his way to Vancouver to board the boat for China, and he lacked one person of making an even dozen missionaries and Mr. Andre accepted the opportunity to accompany the expedition to India. After a few years in India he left for Tibet and China, spending, in all, 15 years in those fields. He was in China at the time of the Boxer rebellion.

Mr. Andre is now associated with the J. C. Penney-Gwinn Corporation, Penney Farms, Florida, and in an interview with the Dispatch yesterday, gave the following interesting account of the farms.

J. C. Penney of the Penney-Gwinn Corporation, is the same Mr. Penney as of the J. C. Penney stores. It is in his home at Belle Isle at Miami, Fla., that President-Elect Herbert Hoover is making his home until time for the inauguration. In the meantime, Mr. Penney and his family left New York on January 15 for a trip around the world which will extend over six months.

The Penney Farms are located at Green Cove Springs, Fla., just 28 miles south of Jacksonville. It may be interesting in this connection to mention that it was here that Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote the story of Uncle Toms Cabin. The house is still to be seen there.

The Penney Farms consist of a tract of 120,000 acres, which comprises about two-thirds of Clay county. In undertaking to develop these lands, Mr. Penney and his associates have had motives outside of mere business, such as to help people who otherwise might not be able to procure their own homes, and at the same time to solve economic problems that confront Florida as a state. The latter has in view chiefly to supply the great need of dairy products, eggs and poultry that confronts the state, which spends annually more than $80,000,000 in the purchase of these products from outside sources. Consequently, while they cultivate fruit and nut trees, as well as intensive farming of vegetables and berries, the organization is sponsoring to the limits of its ability the program which they call the "Cow-Hog-Hen Program."

For this reason they are seeking from the north farmers experienced in the handling of dairy cows and chickens as well as hogs. They have demonstrated that the cattle can have outdoor pasturage each year and that, on the whole, the cost production of milk is not more, but rather less than in the north; and whereas farmers here can get seven to eight cents per quart for their milk; the Penney Farms, delivered to the dairy, get a retail price for grade A milk of 25c per quart.

The Penney Farms is a unique community which has been much written about in the magazines of the entire land. It is called the "Memorial Community" because it has been erected by Mr. Penney in memory of his parents who were Christian workers, his father having been a Baptist preacher. The community consists of 22 houses or homes, and an imposing church, covering about 20 acres of land. The houses are all of individual architecture, the whole having been built by a well known architect of New York. The homes are entirely modern, even the cooking and heating being done by electricity. The church has a $35,000 three manual pipe organ, which was a gift of Mr. Gwinn. The occupants of these homes are supernumerary preachers and their wives, at present representing 17 denominations. The houses are fully furnished and the occupants have no expense of any kind except to buy their own groceries. They may stay as long as they like, even for the rest of their lives if they so desire.

Mr. Andre's mission on this trip, which carries him to the west coast and back to Jacksonville, is to find farmers and experienced grape growers and to induce a modest number of such farmers to move to Penney Farms to take part in this development.

Mr. Andre will be in the city over Sunday, and will speak at the Swedish Bethany Sunday school at 9:45 o'clock tomorrow morning.

BLOCK-BOOKING THE AIR

RADIOCASTING in the United States is faced with plenty of problems awaiting solution which have developed out of the recent change of wavelengths that aimed to eliminate interference, says the Christian Science Monitor. Yet still another question looms on the horizon, according to H. A. Bellows, manager of radio-casting station WCCO of Minneapolis. He charges that radio programs are now being block-booked on the same plan that motion pictures are being distributed—"take what we offer or you may have none of our product."

Mr. Bellows says that while Station WCCO had a contract with the National Broadcasting Company, he sought to diversify the chain programs by dropping some of the numbers in favor of numbers to be supplied by the other big radio-casting company, Columbia. He was not permitted to make this choice—he could take all the programs that the National was supplying or none. Station WCCO surrendered its National contract and signed with Columbia. Mr. Bellows states that he is satisfied with the Columbia programs, though he is not reported as saying whether he is permitted by that chain to omit numbers that he might like to replace on occasion with events of local origin.

The parallel between radio and the movies is not close enough to pursue comparisons at any length, but the matter of costs of production has its similarities in both cases. The block-booking of motion pictures makes it possible for the manufacturer to get his money back on pictures that turn out to be weak, for the exhibitors are required to take them along with the strong pictures in every block of films contracted for. In radio-casting, the chain company accepts a price for putting an advertising program on the air from a specified number of stations. If one of those stations in the chain fails to send out that particular program, the advertiser could demand a rebate and the parent station would find itself in the position of being unable to fulfill its business obligations.

Until block-booking is decided in the courts to be an unfair trade practice, it is to be expected that the radio chains, like the motion-picture producers, will continue to use this distributing device. Many independent motion-picture exhibitors would like to pick and choose their programs, just as Mr. Bellows wished to select his radio offerings. Block-booking, we are told by all who practice it, is an economical way of doing business. In essence it means that the consumer bears part of the burdens of the manufacturer's "unintentional failures." He does not choose to make "dud" films any more than he knowingly undertakes to broadcast dull programs. But for one reason or another, he utilizes his facilities to do just that thing, and it is up to the consumer to grin and bear it for the sake of the good programs that he gets. That is the economic side of the question, however unsatisfactory an answer it may be to the ultimate consumer.

"GOOD TIME FOR GOOD FARMER TO BUY LAND"

EUGENE DAVENPORT, who farmed in Michigan before he was chosen head of the Illinois College of Agriculture, and who, since his retirement, has returned to his old farm homestead, told a gathering of Minnesota farmers recently that "this is a good time for a good farmer, young or old, to buy land, though he should be careful of the amount of indebtedness."

The former college dean summed up his analysis of the factors that have brought hard times to many farmers by stating that manufacturer and trade are in the saddle, and their slogan of the "lively dollar" has set up a price level both for wages and goods which the farmer cannot reach. "Because we are in a highway and school building age, and because for state and local purposes we are raising too large a proportion of the public revenue by direct levies on property, the taxes, which farmers pay are inordinately high."

The outlook for the future of agriculture is decidedly encouraging, however, Mr. Davenport believes. The general interest in the prosperity of the farmer, everywhere recognized as necessary to continued national prosperity, can only be taken as a mighty influence in its favor, he said.—Park Rapids Enterprise.

A GRIDIRON "RAZZBERRY"

THE annual University of Minnesota gridiron dinner will be held at the Leamington hotel in Minneapolis on February 14. The dinner is sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, campus chapter of the national journalistic fraternity. The chief dessert will be "razzberry," served in various styles.

The list of 300 invitations to the annual "razz" session includes 150 leading university students, 75 faculty members and 75 prominent business and newspaper men of the state. The date selected is on the eve of the Minnesota Editorial association meeting in the Twin Cities, enabling many to attend who otherwise could not.

COMMUNITY affairs are receiving intense consideration by the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber under the direction of Attorney C. A. Ryan promises to have just as successful a year as in the past term when it was directed by R. E. Wyett.

BLOCK-BOOKING THE AIR

RADIOCASTING in the United States is faced with plenty of problems awaiting solution which have developed out of the recent change of wavelengths that aimed to eliminate interference, says the Christian Science Monitor. Yet still another question looms on the horizon, according to H. A. Bellows, manager of radio-casting station WCCO of Minneapolis. He charges that radio programs are now being block-booked on the same plan that motion pictures are being distributed—"take what we offer or you may have none of our product."

Mr. Bellows says that while Station WCCO had a contract with the National Broadcasting Company, he sought to diversify the chain programs by dropping some of the numbers in favor of numbers to be supplied by the other big radio-casting company, Columbia. He was not permitted to make this choice—he could take all the programs that the National was supplying or none. Station WCCO surrendered its National contract and signed with Columbia. Mr. Bellows states that he is satisfied with the Columbia programs, though he is not reported as saying whether he is permitted by that chain to omit numbers that he might like to replace on occasion with events of local origin.

The parallel between radio and the movies is not close enough to pursue comparisons at any length, but the matter of costs of production has its similarities in both cases. The block-booking of motion pictures makes it possible for the manufacturer to get his money back on pictures that turn out to be weak, for the exhibitors are required to take them along with the strong pictures in every block of films contracted for. In radio-casting, the chain company accepts a price for putting an advertising program on the air from a specified number of stations. If one of those stations in the chain fails to send out that particular program, the advertiser could demand a rebate and the parent station would find itself in the position of being unable to fulfill its business obligations.

Until block-booking is decided in the courts to be an unfair trade practice, it is to be expected that the radio chains, like the motion-picture producers, will continue to use this distributing device. Many independent motion-picture exhibitors would like to pick and choose their programs, just as Mr. Bellows wished to select his radio offerings. Block-booking, we are told by all who practice it, is an economical way of doing business. In essence it means that the consumer bears part of the burdens of the manufacturer's "unintentional failures." He does not choose to make "dud" films any more than he knowingly undertakes to broadcast dull programs. But for one reason or another, he utilizes his facilities to do just that thing, and it is up to the consumer to grin and bear it for the sake of the good programs that he gets. That is the economic side of the question, however unsatisfactory an answer it may be to the ultimate consumer.

"GOOD TIME FOR GOOD FARMER TO BUY LAND"

EUGENE DAVENPORT, who farmed in Michigan before he was chosen head of the Illinois College of Agriculture, and who, since his retirement, has returned to his old farm homestead, told a gathering of Minnesota farmers recently that "this is a good time for a good farmer, young or old, to buy land, though he should be careful of the amount of indebtedness."

The former college dean summed up his analysis of the factors that have brought hard times to many farmers by stating that manufacturer and trade are in the saddle, and their slogan of the "lively dollar" has set up a price level both for wages and goods which the farmer cannot reach. "Because we are in a highway and school building age, and because for state and local purposes we are raising too large a proportion of the public revenue by direct levies on property, the taxes, which farmers pay are inordinately high."

The outlook for the future of agriculture is decidedly encouraging, however, Mr. Davenport believes. The general interest in the prosperity of the farmer, everywhere recognized as necessary to continued national prosperity, can only be taken as a mighty influence in its favor, he said.—Park Rapids Enterprise.

A GRIDIRON "RAZZBERRY"

THE annual University of Minnesota gridiron dinner will be held at the Leamington hotel in Minneapolis on February 14. The dinner is sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, campus chapter of the national journalistic fraternity. The chief dessert will be "razzberry," served in various styles.

The list of 300 invitations to the annual "razz" session includes 150 leading university students, 75 faculty members and 75 prominent business and newspaper men of the state. The date selected is on the eve of the Minnesota Editorial association meeting in the Twin Cities, enabling many to attend who otherwise could not.

COMMUNITY affairs are receiving intense consideration by the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber under the direction of Attorney C. A. Ryan promises to have just as successful a year as in the past term when it was directed by R. E. Wyett.

ONE feels the cold more intensely in damp air than in dry air. Zero at Chicago, a lake port, causes more suffering than 10 below at Brainerd.

WE have come to the conclusion that when a season like winter is normal, that the balance of the year will retain its place.

THE city snow plow was a wise investment and it demonstrates its value to the satisfaction of every citizen.

LONG PRAIRIE is seeking to eliminate radio interference.

CLUBBED TO DEATH BY "APE MAN"

IN BRAINERD TEAM THE GUARDS DID THEIR SHARE OF SCORING

Brainerd brought its season's average to a 500 per cent basis by defeating Little Falls high last night in a non-conference game, 32-17.

The Brainerd team outclassed the Little Falls team in all departments. However, the Little Falls team was made up of inexperienced players, for the four regulars had been lost at mid-year by graduation. The Little Falls team in the main was made up of sophomores, and should be a real contender in a couple of years.

Konchal was the main cog of the Little Falls team. He scored three baskets and two free throws for high scoring honors.

The scoring was divided on the Brainerd team, the guards coming in for their share of scoring. The team did good work in pivoting and individual work, but the passing showed effects of lack of practice space.

It was a good game for the Brainerd team to get used to a large floor in preparation for the game with the St. Cloud Tech tonight at Roosevelt gym.

The Little Falls coach remarked that "it was just too bad that the Brainerd team did not have a place to practice."

JACK SHARKEY-YOUNG STRIBLING BOUT IS ASSURED

FIELDS-McCARTHY FIGHT DRAWS FANS' NOTICE

Chicago, Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—The National Boxing association's attempt to force Champion Joe Dundee to defend his welterweight title has brought into prominence the Jackie Fields-Jack McCarthy fight to be held here Monday.

From this fight may come Dundee's next opponent. Fields is rated as a logical opponent for the welterweight champion and McCarthy's real chance to demonstrate ability comes when he meets Fields.

The N. B. A. in its demand that Dundee defend his title gave the champion 60 days in which to defend his title.

MELLO IN VICTORY OVER JOE DUNDEE

Boston, Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—The world would have a new welterweight champion today if Joe Dundee of Baltimore had risked his title in his 10-round bout with sturdy Al Mello of Lowell in the Boston Garden last night.

In 30 minutes of furious fighting the New England welter champion overwhelmed the world champion, flooring him twice for counts of nine, and capturing all but four rounds. The title was not at stake as the boxers were at catch weights, Dundee 147, and Mello 150.

As a result of Mello's victory, however, it appeared likely he would be matched with Jack Thompson of Chicago for the right to fight Dundee for the championship.

Bill Carrigan Pays Ira Flagstead Big Tribute

BH Carrigan paid tribute to Ira Flagstead, star outfielder of the Boston Red Sox, by calling him one of the finest all-around players in the game and a performer with the real old-time spirit.

"I'd like to have a team of Flagsteads," remarked Carrigan. "He's a throwback to the old-fashioned ball player who loves the game and gets a decided kick from playing it. He is a good club man and not at all difficult to handle. I don't like that phrase 'difficult to handle,' but you ask me about it and I answer."

"Big league ball players are not difficult to handle. But, just the same, it is positively refreshing to have a sincere, conscientious fellow like Flaggy on your ball club. He's quiet, and yet he is aggressive and wants to win all the time. You may notice that he crowds the plate up there at the bat. That is the type of batter the average pitcher does not like. Flaggy gets knocked down more than any other player on the team, but he is always on his toes, of the quick, nervous type which finds little difficulty getting out of the way."

SHARKEY DEFEATS TARTAR IN THE SHAPE OF K. O. CHRISTNER

STIRBLING WAS DEFEATING SOMEONE NAMED SMITH IN NEW ORLEANS

By FRANK GETTY (United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Jan. 26.—A heavy-weight elimination bout between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling at Miami Beach on February 27 has been assured by victories of the prospective combatants in their bouts last night.

Of the two, Sharkey had the tougher time, as he ran into a tartar in the person of K. O. Christner of Akron, O., whom he outpointed with difficulty here while Stribling was defeating someone named Smith in New Orleans.

The Bostonian's victory before a record crowd in Madison Square Garden was achieved by a belated rally, after the former rubber puddler had piled up a lead in the early rounds.

While Sharkey failed to stop his awkward and inexperienced opponent, he came out of the bout with considerable credit, since he weathered a storm of right hand punches and survived to bruise Christner badly towards the end of the fight.

The blows Christner drove home to the Lithuanian's head and body would have taken much of the fight out of a less courageous and less canny opponent.

"This Christner is just about the best heavyweight I ever fought," said Sharkey in his dressing room after the bout.

Sharkey fought a well-calculated fight, staying off the ambitious but aimless rushes of Christner during the first few rounds, and coming back to rip home devastating uppercuts and hard rights and lefts to the body which would have stopped anyone who lacked the perfect condition and stamina that the Ohioan brought to the combat.

The manner of Sharkey's victory was not as important—looking ahead to his bout with Stribling—as was the fact that he stood up well under occasional but severe punishment, never lost his head and kept constantly driving away with both hands.

New Orleans, Jan. 26.—A slow moving, six foot four inch giant from the Pacific coast is the latest technical knockout victim of Young Stribling, Georgia heavyweight.

Referee Jimmy Moran stopped the fight between Stribling and Ralph Smith, coast boxer, in the third round, after the latter had been down five times during the fight and was out on his feet.

The fight had been scheduled for ten rounds.

Old-Time Ball Tale Is Now Amusing to Players

This is a secret kept for 14 years. Hank Gowdy and Billy Southworth are from Columbus, Ohio. Hank was a star behind the bat with the Braves when Billy was trying to get a foothold with the Cleveland Indians. The two clubs met in Macon, Ga., in 1914 and the game was close.

Southworth came to bat and Rudolph was pitching. Hank was Rudolph's best friend, but still he wanted that kid Southworth to make good. So he whispered to Southworth what Rudolph was going to throw and Southworth hit a double. That helped to win the game.

The next time up Gowdy was about to bring in enough runs to win for Boston with a long line drive out of the park when what did Southworth do but make a long run, put one foot on the fence and reach up for a one-handed catch.

When Gowdy joined the Rochester Red Wings he and Southworth, who is managing the club, had a laugh over the day in Macon. They're great pals, and Hank is glad to be with his friend from Columbus.

FOX, BRAINERD GOALIE, IS OUT OF GAME BECAUSE OF INJURIES

LOCALS HOPE FOR CLEAN SWEEP OF SERIES WITH RANGE TEAM

The Brainerd Hockey team, the Red Devils, will meet Crosby-Ironton tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the C.-I. rink. The local team has hopes of taking the game, thus making a clean sweep of the series. Brainerd won the first game last Sunday by the score of 5 to 1.

The following players will make the trip: MacIntosh, Rofdal, Gabion, Flaata, Lester Creger, Molstad, Lyle Creger, Lukens and the team's mascot Graf.

Fox, the Brainerd goalie, will be out of the line-up on account of injuries received in last Sunday's game here. He will probably be in shape for the next game.

Sport Heroes of 1928—Football

(Right) Chuck CARROLL

CAGLE, OF THE ARMY, AND CARROLL, OF THE UNIV. OF WASHINGTON, WERE PICKED TO FILL THE HALFBACK BERTHS ON MOST OF THE ALL-AMERICAN TEAMS NAMED LAST FALL.

EACH HAS BEEN ELECTED CAPTAIN OF HIS TEAM FOR THE 1929 CAMPAIGN.

By QUIN HALL.

ENTERING the realm of football and attempting to pick a pair of heroes for the year of 1929 is almost like climbing a eagle of lions which haven't had their teeth pulled prior to going into the movies.

When the grade of football has improved like it has, and when there are dozens of schools represented on the gridiron and each school has its own particular hero, it is no simple task to delve into the files and find a couple of outstanding pigskin stars.

We're not trying to alibi ourselves for selecting Chris Cagle, of the Army, and Chuck Carroll, of Washington, but we're merely pointing out the difficulties and, after all, something must be done about football. In choosing Cagle and Carroll as representative stars we leave ourselves open to a mass of criticism from the territory which lies between the Atlantic and Pacific. And that's considerable ground to overlook.

Carroll, the thunderbolt of the Northwest, and Cagle, the rapier of West Point, were almost unanimously chosen by All-American team players for the halfback berths. Pop Warner, the old gray single-handed, hold the powerful Stanford team to a single touchdown. In this game Warner referred to him as a whole team in himself.

"He made half of the tackles against us," said Warner. "He blocked like a demon and, with an unconquerable spirit on a losing team, he never spared himself. He hit the line as hard as the finish as on the first play, and he knifed his way through our great center trio time and again. He is the most destructive and vicious runner since Nevers."

After seeing Chuck perform against Stanford, Mathews is quoted as having said: "I have never seen Carroll's equal for sheer driving power. He generates a leg drive that forces the tackler's arms apart and he follows interference shrewdly without running blindly. Against Stanford he punted superbly with a rain soaked ball and threw low, bullet-like passes with deadly accuracy. On a winning team he would be unstoppable."

Both Cagle and Carroll have been elected to captain their respective teams this fall, and in the meantime it looks as if they justify the spotlight when it comes to football heroes of 1928. We'll ride with them until we're convinced we're wrong."

in the schools of the province. The officers had sought the men Wednesday without avail.

Upon the return of the police on Wednesday they found the doukhobors arrayed in battle formation, stripped of all their clothes, and engaged in a primeval war dance in the snow and the near zero biting weather, challenging the officers to produce the entire strength of the provincial police to do battle.

The police retired after vainly seeking by persuasion to obtain the surrender of Alex Popoff, Tom Wolk and Paul Aljoff, accused of persuading young doukhobors to leave the public schools.

JACK SHARKEY-YOUNG STRIBLING BOUT IS ASSURED

FIELDS-McCARTHY FIGHT DRAWS FANS' NOTICE

Chicago, Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—The National Boxing association's attempt to force Champion Joe Dundee to defend his welterweight title has brought into prominence the Jackie Fields-Jack McCarthy fight to be held here Monday.

From this fight may come Dundee's next opponent. Fields is rated as a logical opponent for the welterweight champion and McCarthy's real chance to demonstrate ability comes when he meets Fields.

The N. B. A. in its demand that Dundee defend his title gave the champion 60 days in which to defend his title.

MELLO IN VICTORY OVER JOE DUNDEE

Boston, Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—The world would have a new welterweight champion today if Joe Dundee of Baltimore had risked his title in his 10-round bout with sturdy Al Mello of Lowell in the Boston Garden last night.

In 30 minutes of furious fighting the New England welter champion overwhelmed the world champion, flooring him twice for counts of nine, and capturing all but four rounds. The title was not at stake as the boxers were at catch weights, Dundee 147, and Mello 150.

As a result of Mello's victory, however, it appeared likely he would be matched with Jack Thompson of Chicago for the right to fight Dundee for the championship.

Bill Carrigan Pays Ira Flagstead Big Tribute

Bill Carrigan paid tribute to Ira Flagstead, star outfielder of the Boston Red Sox, by calling him one of the finest all-around players in the game and a performer with the real old-time spirit.

"I'd like to have a team of Flagsteads," remarked Carrigan. "He's a throwback to the old-fashioned ball player who loves the game and gets a decided kick from playing it. He is a good club man and not at all difficult to handle. I don't like that phrase 'difficult to handle,' but you ask me about it and I answer."

"Big league ball players are not difficult to handle. But, just the same, it is positively refreshing to have a sincere, conscientious fellow like Flaggy on your ball club. He's quiet, and yet he is aggressive and wants to win all the time. You may notice that he crowds the plate up there at the bat. That is the type of batter the average pitcher does not like. Flaggy gets knocked down more than any other player on the team, but he is always on his toes, of the quick, nervous type which finds little difficulty getting out of the way."

SHARKEY DEFEATS TARTAR IN THE SHAPE OF K. O.
CHRISTNER

STRIBLING WAS DEFEATING
SOMEONE NAMED SMITH IN NEW ORLEANS

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Jan. 26.—A heavy-weight elimination bout between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling at Miami Beach on February 27 has been assured by victories of the prospective combatants in their bouts last night.

Of the two, Sharkey had the tougher time, as he ran into a tartar in the person of K. O. Christner of Akron, O., whom he outpointed with difficulty here while Stribling was defeating someone named Smith in New Orleans.

The Bostonian's victory before a record crowd in Madison Square Garden was achieved by a belated rally, after the former rubber puddler had piled up a lead in the early rounds. While Sharkey failed to stop his awkward and inexperienced opponent, he came out of the bout with considerable credit, since he weathered a storm of right hand punches and survived to bruise Christner badly towards the end of the fight.

The blows Christner drove home to the Lithuanian's head and body would have taken much of the fight out of a less courageous and less canny opponent.

"This Christner is just about the best heavyweight I ever fought," said Sharkey in his dressing room after the bout.

Sharkey fought a well-calculated fight, staving off the ambitious but aimless rushes of Christner during the first few rounds, and coming back to rip home devastating uppercuts and hard rights and lefts to the body which would have stopped anyone who lacked the perfect condition and stamina that the Ohioan brought to the combat.

The manner of Sharkey's victory was not as important—looking ahead to his bout with Stribling—as was the fact that he stood up well under occasional but severe punishment, never lost his head and kept constantly driving away with both hands.

New Orleans, Jan. 26.—A slow moving, six foot four inch giant from the Pacific coast is the latest technical knockout victim of Young Stribling, Georgia heavyweight. Referee Jimmy Moran stopped the fight between Stribling and Ralph Smith, coast boxer, in the third round, after the latter had been down five times during the fight and was out on his feet.

The fight had been scheduled for ten rounds.

Old-Time Ball Tale Is

Now Amusing to Players

This is a secret kept for 14 years. Hank Gowdy and Billy Southworth are from Columbus, Ohio. Hank was a star behind the bat with the Braves when Billy was trying to get a foothold with the Cleveland Indians. The two clubs met in Macon, Ga., in 1914 and the game was close.

Southworth came to bat and Rudolph was pitching. Hank was Rudolph's best friend, but still he wanted that kid Southworth to make good. So he whispered to Southworth what Rudolph was going to throw and Southworth hit a double. That helped to win the game.

The next time up Gowdy was about to bring in enough runs to win for Boston with a long line drive out of the park when what did Southworth do but make a long run, put one foot on the fence and reach up for a one-handed catch.

When Gowdy joined the Rochester Red Wings he and Southworth, who is managing the club, had a laugh over the day in Macon. They're great pals, and Hank is glad to be with his friend from Columbus.

Falls in Her Swim

Mercedes Gleitz, London stenographer and channel swimmer, failed in her attempt to swim the Irish channel. She was forced from the water when the sea suddenly roughened and made further progress impossible. Miss Gleitz had covered 10 of the 22 miles of cold channel water in three and one-half hours when she was forced to abandon her attempt.

NINE "POLAR BEARS" BREAK THE ICE FOR SWIM

Here are nine remaining members of the Polar Bears, organized to swim in Lake Michigan every Sunday at Chicago, about to plunge into icy lake. Five members were eliminated by the 19 below zero weather. Norm Ross, aquatic star (at extreme left), is training in this manner for the coming Wrigley swim.

OF SERIES WITH RANGE
TEAM

The Braierd Hockey team, the Red Devils, will meet Crosby-Ironton tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the C-I rink. The local team has hopes of taking the game, thus making a clean sweep of the series. Braierd won the first game last Sunday by the score of 5 to 1.

The following players will make the trip: MacIntosh, Roffidal, Gabiou, Flaata, Lester Creger, Molstad, Lyle Creger, Lukens and the team's mascot Graff.

Fox, the Braierd goalie, will be out of the line-up on account of injuries received in last Sunday's game here. He will probably be in shape for the next game.

BERSERK PRIMEVAL SAVAGERY REPORTED

100 DOUKHOBORS STARK NAKED, DANCED IN THE SNOW

Grand Forks, British Columbia, Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—Government officials today pondered the problem of arresting three members of the Russian land settler colony, known as doukhobors, near here where berserk primeval savagery is reported to have arisen in resistance to the provincial police.

One hundred doukhobors, stark naked, dancing in the snow, which was a foot deep, greeted two provincial police who went to the colony in the schools of the province. The officers had sought the men Wednesday without avail.

Upon the return of the police on Wednesday they found the doukhobors arrayed in battle formation, stripped of all their clothes, and engaged in a primeval war dance in the snow and the near zero biting weather, challenging the officers to produce the entire strength of the provincial police to do battle.

The police retired after vainly seeking by persuasion to obtain the surrender of Alex Popoff, Tom Wolk and Paul Aljoff, accused of persuading young doukhobors to leave the public schools.

By QUIN HALL.
ENTERING the realm of football and attempting to pick a pair of heroes for the year of 1929 is almost like climbing in a cage of lions which haven't had their teeth pulled prior to going into the movies.
When the grade of football has improved like it has, and when there are dozens of schools represented on the gridiron and each school has its own particular hero, it is no simple task to delve into the files and find a couple of outstanding pigskin stars.
We're not trying to alibi ourselves for selecting Chris Cagle, of the Army, and Chuck Carroll, of Washington, but we're merely pointing out the difficulties and, after all, something must be done about football. In choosing Cagle and Carroll as representative stars, we leave ourselves open to a mass of criticism from the territory which lies between the Atlantic and Pacific. And that's considerable ground to overlook.
Carroll, the thunderbolt of the Northwest, and Cagle, the rapier of West Point, were almost unanimously chosen by All-American team pickers for the halfback berths. Pop Warner, the old gray single-handed, hold the powerful Stanford team to a single touchdown. In this game Warner referred to him as a whole team in himself.
"He made half of the tackles against us," said Warner. "He blocked like a demon and, with an unconquerable spirit on a losing team, he never spared himself. He hit the line as hard as the finish as on the first play, and he knifed his way through our great center trio time and again. He is the most destructive and vicious runner since Nevers."
After seeing Chuck perform against Stanford, Mathews is quoted as having said: "I have never seen Carroll's equal for sheer driving power. He generates a leg drive that forces the tackler's arms apart and he follows interference shrewdly without running blindly. Against Stanford he punted superbly with a rain soaked ball and threw low, bullet-like passes with deadly accuracy. On a winning team he would be unstoppable."
Both Cagle and Carroll have been elected to captain their respective teams this fall, and in the meantime it looks as if they justify deserve the spotlight when it comes to football heroes of 1928. We'll ride with them until we're convinced we're wrong.

ABANDON SEARCH FOR FISHERMAN ADRIFT ON LAKE

Petoskey, Mich., Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—Search was abandoned today for Louis Sweet, Alanson fisherman, who was blown out into Lake Michigan on an ice floe during a blizzard three days ago. Three aviators who flew over the numerous islands of the lake reported the blizzards had broken up the ice along the northeastern portion and said it was hardly possible the drifting fisherman could have survived. Coast guardsmen also gave up their search.

Sallisaw, Okla., Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—Bert Cotton found a tall feather of one of his missing turkeys. Later he found the carcass in the possession of Charles Wallace, a neighbor, and yesterday, in the presence of a jury, he fitted the feather back into the turkey. Wallace will serve one year in the penitentiary.

Loading Tobacco in Early Virginia

In 1612, John Rolfe, the husband of Pocahontas began the systematic planting of tobacco in Virginia. Within a few years, it became the greatest industry in the state. Before this, America exported little, but with the vast extent of tobacco cultivation, commerce with Europe began. Those upon whom responsibility falls appreciate the personal interest we take in carrying out their wishes properly.

WHAT IS A BARGAIN?

In this community are hundreds of individuals and families on the watch for an advertisement which will offer them what they want at at an advantageous price.

Call them bargain-hunters if you like, but thrifty shoppers would be the better designation. Thrift is a commendable trait and merchants should cater to it.

One family wants a new carpet---the need is not urgent. Another family is looking forward to buying dining-room furniture--it may not be for a twelve month.

One man is thinking of buying himself a watch. A woman a shopping bag; another an umbrella.

All can be made to buy earlier---by advertising. Advertising can make the desire so keen that the bargain is forgotten in the fever for immediate possession.

A Note To Merchants

Stimulate business by the offer of some slow moving lines at special prices. Brighten up business by advertising some desirable goods at reduced prices. Make advertising banish dull business. Often you can tempt the buyer who is biding his or her time, to buy from you at a time of your naming.

Criticize Justice and Interior Departments

Washington, Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—A dispute developed in the senate public lands committee today over the proposed Walsh report criticizing the justice and interior departments for their connection with the Salt Creek leasing case. The committee declined to sanction the report without some modifications and adjourned without action to meet again Monday.

ABANDON SEARCH FOR FISHERMAN ADRIFT ON LAKE

Petoskey, Mich., Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—Search was abandoned today for Louis Sweet, Alanson fisherman, who was blown out into Lake Michigan on an ice floe during a blizzard three days ago. Three aviators who flew over the numerous islands of the lake reported the blizzards had broken up the ice along the northeastern portion and said it was hardly possible the drifting fisherman could have survived. Coast guardsmen also gave up their search.

Sallisaw, Okla., Jan. 26.—(U.P.)—Bert Cotton found a tail feather of one of his missing turkeys. Later he found the carcass in the possession of Charles Wallace, a neighbor, and yesterday, in the presence of a jury, he fitted the feather back into the turkey. Wallace will serve one year in the penitentiary.

WHAT IS A BARGAIN?

In this community are hundreds of individuals and families on the watch for an advertisement which will offer them what they want at at an advantageous price.

Call them bargain-hunters if you like, but thrifty shoppers would be the better designation. Thrift is a commendable trait and merchants should cater to it.

One family wants a new carpet---the need is not urgent. Another family is looking forward to buying dining-room furniture--it may not be for a twelve month.

One man is thinking of buying himself a watch. A woman a shopping bag; another an umbrella.

All can be made to buy earlier---by advertising. Advertising can make the desire so keen that the bargain is forgotten in the fever for immediate possession.

A Note To Merchants

Stimulate business by the offer of some slow moving lines at special prices. Brighten up business by advertising some desirable goods at reduced prices. Make advertising banish dull business. Often you can tempt the buyer who is biding his or her time, to buy from you at a time of your naming.

Loading Tobacco in Early Virginia

In 1612, John Rolfe, the husband of Pocahontas began the systematic planting of tobacco in Virginia. Within a few years, it became the greatest industry in the state. Before this, America exported little, but with the vast extent of tobacco cultivation, commerce with Europe began. Those upon whom responsibility falls appreciate the personal interest we take in carrying out their wishes properly.

FUR BREEDERS MEET, TALK OVER PROBLEMS

Meeting Called by Clement Thompson for Relief of Muskrat, Beaver Breeders

PROPOSES NEW ORGANIZATION

Opposition to New Association Offered by Fox and Fur Breeders Association Director

Desiring to establish a firm foundation for muskrat and beaver farming in the state, Minnesota fur bearing animal breeders were in session today in the Chamber of Commerce rooms discussing problems facing them and ways and means for their future protection.

The original purpose of the meeting was to found an association of muskrat and beaver breeders for the state of Minnesota with headquarters at Brainerd whereby through the cooperative efforts of the breeders in one organization might secure favorable legislation for their protection and future welfare.

But up to press time today considerable opposition had been expressed to it by speakers in sympathy with the Minnesota Fox and Fur Breeders association and the work of this association in the interests of all fur breeders in the state.

Expressions were heard to the effect that a combined association of fur breeders would be in the position to better conduct the welfare of the breeders than individual organizations.

Among those present at the opening of the meeting were: A. M. Opsahl, Henry I. Cohen, Brainerd; H. E. Satter, H. G. Bretz, St. Cloud; E. Sadusky, S. Sadusky, W. C. Kelehan, F. C. Hotz, Staples; G. L. Darrow, C. A. Cherry, Detroit Lakes; George L. Ramsey, Pillager; Lundborg Brothers, Nisswa; J. H. Crosby, St. Paul; A. Saterlee, Pillager; W. S. Ullman, Aitkin; Frank Gluener, Warroad; August N. Kriebs, Hackensack; P. R. Thielman, St. Cloud; A. R. Burton, R. N. Gardner, Staples; Harry J. LaDue, St. Peter.

C. A. Ryan, president of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce extended welcome to the visitors to Brainerd, expressing the hope that an organization might be fostered with headquarters in Brainerd for the betterment of the fur breeder.

Clement Thompson, of the Thompson Fur Farms, of Motley, called the meeting to order, reading the invitation which he extended to fur breeders throughout the state to attend.

Harry J. LaDue, managing editor of the American Fur Breeder and a director of the Minnesota Fox and Fur Breeders association stated that he was opposed to the founding of a separate organization of muskrat and beaver breeders as protection could be better given the breeders by the Minnesota Fox and Fur Breeders association than through the single efforts of an individual organization not affiliated with them. Mr. LaDue stated that the association was considering the establishment of a summer school for breeders in the Brainerd area.

W. S. Ullman, Aitkin, and George L. Ramsey, Pillager, also spoke in favor of continuing with the Minnesota Fox and Fur Breeders association. The latter suggested that a committee be appointed to meet with committees of the state association to work out plans for the welfare of the muskrat and beaver breeders.

TROOP NO. 6 ENTERTAINS

Boys From Lincoln School Guests at Scout Gathering in Court House

At the regular weekly Scout meeting last evening at the court house, scout troop No. 6, which is sponsored by the Lions club of this city, entertained a large group of boys of scout age from the Lincoln school.

Scout games were played during the greater part of the evening in which all the boys took part.

Scout Executive S. C. Bakken gave a brief talk to the boys on "Scouting" and the events to take place during "Anniversary week" which will be from February 8 to 14 inclusive. In his talk Mr. Bakken emphasized the growth of scouting in this area, the advancement of scouts, and the coming Court of Honor which is to be held at the Congregational church on February 10.

At the close of the meeting the boys all feasted on buttered pop corn. The Odenthal boys of Troop No. 6 furnished the corn. This special corn when popped produced kernels a good inch in diameter and surpassed any corn ever ate by the boys.

Lawrence Ericsson, scoutmaster of the troop extended an invitation to the guests of the evening, to join the troop and become one of "the gang" and a worker and member of the Boy Scouts of America. Many of the boys responded eagerly to the invitation.

The troop keenly feels the absence of their assistant scoutmaster, Mark Cottingham, who as a dispatcher with the Minnesota & International railway company was recently transferred to Bemidji. The troop will also miss three of its active scouts who are leaving the city.

SCORES DANCING AS GODLESS THING

Evangelist Hall Characterizes the Modern Dance as a Feeder of Lust

ATTACKS SCHOOL DANCING

Church Work Would Become More Difficult if Dancing Allowed in School, he Asserts

In answer to the question, "Should Brainerd parents permit dances for the high school pupils," Evangelist Leslie R. Hall speaking at the First Baptist church last evening made some pertinent remarks. Characterizing the modern dance as a "feeder of lust" he said that to introduce this into the high school would be a heartless and godless thing.

"It would be unfair to the parents who object to their children dancing," he said, "for the moral persuasion upon the lives of their children would make them difficult to control. In introducing this into the high school we build the scaffold upon which the moral and spiritual lives of our children will finally hang. In many communities where they have been introduced, the parents have been made extremely sorry but have found that it was easier to get them in than to take them out. The work of the churches would be made more difficult and the ruin of many young people would be hastened should this be permitted by the school board of Brainerd."

Tomorrow will be the last day of the campaign. Two services in the morning and evening will climax the series of meetings. All are invited to attend.

HOTEL PROJECT GIVEN IMPETUS

60 Business and Professional Men Hear Merits of Pine Beach Hotel

MEET AT CHAMBER

B. L. Lagerquist Presides, Speakers Praise Development on Lower Gull Lake

Over 60 business and professional men of the city, answering the call of the augmented Hotel Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, met at dinner there last evening and speakers and chairman vied in expressing their approval of a summer hotel at Pine Beach on Lower Gull Lake.

B. L. Lagerquist presided. R. E. Wyett, past president of the Chamber and a prominent member of the hotel committee, spoke of the value of the tourist trade and what it meant to his business. He gave the history to date of financing operations for the new hotel, of the cooperation of Harrison & Start, A. L. Roberts and other interests and Brainerd citizens. He said there was a need for more lake hotels in the Brainerd lake region.

Attorney Donald Ryan praised the golf course at Pine Beach and that it was a great attraction to gain and hold tourists in this region.

R. R. Gould said any development of the lake region would directly and indirectly help Brainerd.

Attorney G. S. Swanson spoke of the attractions and beauties of the Pine Beach golf course.

John W. Harrison related the various steps in the formation of the hotel project. He and Mr. Start had each taken $10,000 stock and A. L. Roberts, who is to operate the hotel, had taken $20,000.

S. R. Adair related developments of the tourist trade. A few years ago lake property was platted near Pequot. It has been developed and in instance of its value is the fact that a taxpayer from that vicinity made a single payment of $1300 for personal and realty taxes. Years ago Smiley had 15 or 20 personal property taxpayers. Today it has 150 to 160. The hotel, said the speaker, will draw many who later may build and become permanent residents of the lake country. Time is the essence of the contract in the hotel proposition and money must be raised quickly. It is hoped to start building operations by the middle of February. A list of those taking stock was then read and included one $3,000, several at $1,000, followed by a group of $500 subscriptions, $300 and $200 subscriptions.

Members of the hotel committee then canvassed the citizens present. The dinner was served under the direction of Frank Johnson, chairman of the house and social committee. Archer's were the caterers.

NEW PONTIAC IS ON DISPLAY TODAY

Service Motor Co. Showing New Models to Large Crowds

Fulfilling advance promises of big car performance, big car appearance and big car value, the Pontiac Big Six, essentially a brand new car from radiator to tail lamp, went on display today at the showrooms of the Service Motor Co., 508 Front street, local Oakland and Pontiac dealers.

Chassis improvements that give the car flexible performance comparable with cars in a higher price range with bodies styled along entirely different lines, distinguish every model in this newest General Motors line.

While only rounding out its third anniversary, the Pontiac Six enters upon its fourth year a definitely established volume leader, in which position officials of the Oakland Motor Car Company are confident it will more firmly entrench itself by reason of the extraordinary value evident in the car for 1929.

All bodies are entirely new, the line including a 2-door sedan, 4-door sedan, coupe, sport roadster with folding rumble seat, sport phaeton, convertible cabriolet with folding rumble seat, and a landaulet sedan. The last two types are innovations in the Pontiac line, having the appearance of custom built bodies.

Outstanding features contributing to the extraordinary performance of the new car are a larger and more powerful engine; new counter weighted crankshaft; new harmonic balancer; new internal self-energizing brakes; new rear axle; new transmission; larger carburetor, intake manifold and valves; wider springs with new shackles self-adjusting for wear; increased valve lift, and new Hotchkiss drive.

The shell of the radiator, narrow and built up to 35 inches in height, gives to the front the appearance of power and fleetness borne out by the performance of the car. No emblem or name plate marks the front of the radiator shell, but the familiar "Chief Pontiac" radiator cap ornament is retained. A Chrome plated

Wedding Rings

Beautiful hand carved floral designs of all kinds. 18K white gold ladies' rings from $3.75 to $38.50. Gents' rings to match. Newest shapes and patterns.

bar extends vertically from top to bottom of the radiator core.

Larger fenders, full crowned and with a beaded edge, flare out in a graceful sweep over the smart low wheels. A forged steel tie rod replaces the pressed steel rod and lamp support formerly used. Headlamps on four body types come in full chrome plate, while on the remaining models the rims are chrome plated.

A full side view shows to best advantage the original lines of the new car. The slightly arched window design, with new paneling effect between the windows; a high waist line, and unique new concave moulding distinguish the Fisher bodies. This new belt moulding starts at the cowl and completely encircles the body. It is not continued down the hood, as in the Oakland models, but a new curved pillar line, quite similar in appearance to one of America's costliest cars, runs from the center panel on the cowl down to the rear of the hood.

A smart new louvre grouping sets the car instantly apart in traffic. Instead of in the conventional manner, all are grouped in one panel and extend horizontally across the hood.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

HANDSOME Guinn Holden, young minister, newly arrived in a small Texas town, was unaware of the deep love borne for him by Irene Robeline, one of his parishioners. He married the gay and coquettish Lilith, a beautiful bit of femininity, whose boast was that "every boy in town had proposed to her at least twice." A year later Lilith died at childbirth. The infant, also named Lilith, is her father's greatest joy, but suffers from lack of proper care. Irene, tortured by Guinn's worries and still devoted to him, rejects the marriage proposal of Will Lundy, town doctor, who had been keeping company with her, and, according to Mattie Anson, village gossip, would make a good match. Irene tells Will of her secret love for the minister.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIII.

BEWILDERMENT came into his face. "But he was married—and you were not here."

"I loved him when he first came," she said, pride falling away from her like a cloak. "And he—almost loved me, Will. He almost did. Then Lilith came home—and she stole him away. You know her tricky ways. It all but killed me—and I ran away."

Compassion softened his gaze. "Poor child!" He drew her gently to him, and she gave a sob as she leaned her head against his breast. "He doesn't love me, Will! He doesn't even see me. He's so absent-minded when he's with me. But I'm such a fool. I can't stop loving him! Don't blame me, Will!"

"Blame you, my darling girl!" His arms held her closer. He touched her lips to her hair. "It all seems so twisted," she mourned. "If only I hadn't loved him, before you came, Will dear, I could have given you my heart. But now I can't change."

"No more can I." Across the street in the parsonage the light burned in the front room where the minister was working on his sermons for Sunday.

"Blind mole! What's the matter with him?" rasped Lundy. She gave a hysterical laugh! "He's just like the two of us! He can't forget, either! He married his love, but she never loved him!" "Life is a snarl," he said. Then his clasp tightened and he spoke more gently. "Maybe things will turn out right for you, even if they don't for me."

"They won't, Will! He's going away. I'll never see him again!" Then she told him of Buck, of the deacons, of what Guinn had said to her in the study that day. "A dirty shame!" he cried. "I'd like to see steel traps for those deacons."

She laughed shakily. "I've set the traps."

She told him of her visits to the young men of the church. "I've packed the convention, and now all we need is a leader. And that's to be you, Will!"

His clasp loosened; his arms fell to his side. "I don't get you." "Oh, Will, you know you have more influence with the young men of the town than anybody, except the pastor. Help me! Speak against this motion . . . lead the fight against the deacons from the door tomorrow night. . . . And we'll save the day!"

She looked at him imploringly. His face was like frozen lava again, his eyes like burning coals. "So I'm to save my rival for you, am I?" His tone was ominous.

Her hands clung to his arm, and the wretchedness that looked out of her eyes besought his pity. He stooped and kissed her forehead. "It's pretty rough on me, Irene, loving you as I do, to get nothing out of it but a chance to speak in meeting and help rope my rival for you. But I'd lay down my life for you. I'll do what you say."

She threw her arms about his neck and kissed him. "Oh, Will, you're so good!" "Damned if I am!"

On Sunday evening Will Lundy came by early for Irene to go to church with her, and they took front seats. She turned round from time to time to see who was arriving.

In came the choir, men and women, who took their seats on the rostrum and stared at the lesser ones in the congregation. In came the frying-size Sunday school boys, who snatched at the front seats and cuffed each other, snickering. In stole the widows and spinsters, abashed at having no masculine escorts. In came the family groups, mothers and fathers, with assorted little girls. In marched the deacons, one by one—Rufe Whitaker, with his yellowish whiskers that made his face look like a fried egg—a none too fresh egg, at that; Deacon Grimes, with his face like that of a meditative horse; Deacon Hitchcock, with his long gray beard like a Billy goat's; Deacon Cuff, his round, white face as expressionless as a huge onion; Deacon Whitesides, stepping lightly as a boy, and looking from side to side in amazement at the size of the congregation.

Deacon Tell, who weighed almost three hundred pounds, and looked like a hoghead rolling forward; Deacon Griscom, who limped because a rattlesnake had bitten him long ago (the boys said it was the rattler that died with lock-jaw); Deacon Adams, with his benignant open face, round as a clock; Deacon Rutherford, with red sideburns, the hardest one of the lot. Each deacon was accompanied by his wife, for something in the church articles required that a deacon be the husband of one wife, and he always had her with him at church as evidence of his fitness, like a poll-tax receipt shown on demand at the polls.

The young people drifted in in couples and took their seats in the rear, looking expectant, whispering covertly to each other across the backs of the pews. It was the biggest crowd that ever assembled in the church at one time, except on the final night of a revival, when everybody in town turned out to get the thrills.

The deacons were mystified. Irene could see them gaze at the congregation and ask questions of their wives, who shook their heads in ignorance.

A called business session of the church was like prayer meeting, usually an assembly of the aged and sedate.

In came the minister, pale and stern, and mounted to the pulpit. Irene felt a passion of pity and terror as she saw that white face, those troubled eyes, a passion of rage against the deacons who were hounding him so. Then she looked quickly at the man beside her, measured the quiet force of that big frame, the vigor of that flaming, coppery head, that ruddy skin, those steel-gray eyes. Oh, deacons, maybe you'll meet your match!

She saw Abby Whitaker with young Jim Denton. She gave no look at her escort; her burning gaze was fixed on the minister's face. But he saw nothing; his eyes were searching the Bible on the stand before him.

Guinn Holden opened the business session with a brief prayer for guidance, but Irene felt the deacons didn't share in it. Their minds were made up, and prayer couldn't touch them.

He announced a hymn: "The Son of God goes forth to war." A kindly crown to gain: His blood-red banner streams afar!

Who follows in His train?" From the young people in the rear of the church came a surge of song, in which she could hear the swift, marching feet, see the banners waving in the charge of youth and justice against bigoted age.

Irene turned to give one exultant look at the rear of the house when the song was ended, and then she clutched Will Lundy's arm. There against the wall at the back, his arms folded, his big head thrown back in defiance, stood Buck Evans. Had the pastor seen him? Yes, he was looking right at him.

The pastor said quietly that the chairman of the board of deacons had a report to make.

(To Be Continued.)

For the first time in several years Colleen Moore and Antonio Moreno are to be seen in the same picture. "Synthetic Sin," which comes to the Lyceum theatre for Sunday only, was the occasion of a reunion of these popular players, their last screen appearance in the same cast having been in "Look Your Best," one of Rupert Hughes' stories. Moreno heads Miss Moore's supporting cast in the character of a playwright, and participates in humorously exciting adventures that climax in a desperate gang war that is cleverly combined with a laughable situation.

BEWILDERMENT came into his face. "But he was married—and you were not here."

"I loved him when he first came," she said, pride falling away from her like a cloak. "And he almost loved me, Will. He almost did. Then Lilith came home—and she stole him away. You know her crazy ways. It all but killed me—and I ran away."

His clasp loosened; his arms fell to his side. "I don't get you." "Oh, Will, you know you have more influence with the young men of the town than anybody, except the pastor. Help me! Speak against this motion... lead the fight against the deacons from the floor tomorrow night... And we'll save the day!"

She looked at him imploringly. His face was like frozen lava again, his eyes like burning coals. "So I'm to save my rival for you, am I?" His tone was ominous.

Her hands clung to his arm, and the wretchedness that looked out of her eyes besought his pity. He stooped and kissed her forehead. "It's pretty rough on me, Irene, loving you as I do, to get nothing out of it but a chance to speak in meeting and help rope my rival for you. But I'd lay down my life for you. She threw her arms about his neck and kissed him. "Oh, Will, you're so good!" "Darned if I am!"

On Sunday evening Will Lundy came by early for Irene to go to church with her, and they took front seats. She turned round from time to time to see who was arriving.

In came the choir, men and women, who took their seats on the rostrum and stared at the lesser ones in the congregation. Oh, deacons, maybe you'll meet your match!

She saw Abby Whitaker with young Jim Denton. She gave no look at her escort; her burning gaze was fixed on the minister's face. But he saw nothing; his eyes were searching the Bible on the stand before him.

Guinn Holden opened the business session with a brief prayer for guidance, but Irene felt the deacons didn't share in it. Their minds were made up, and prayer couldn't touch them.

He announced a hymn: "The Son of God goes forth to war."

A kingly crown to gain: His blood-red banner streams afar:

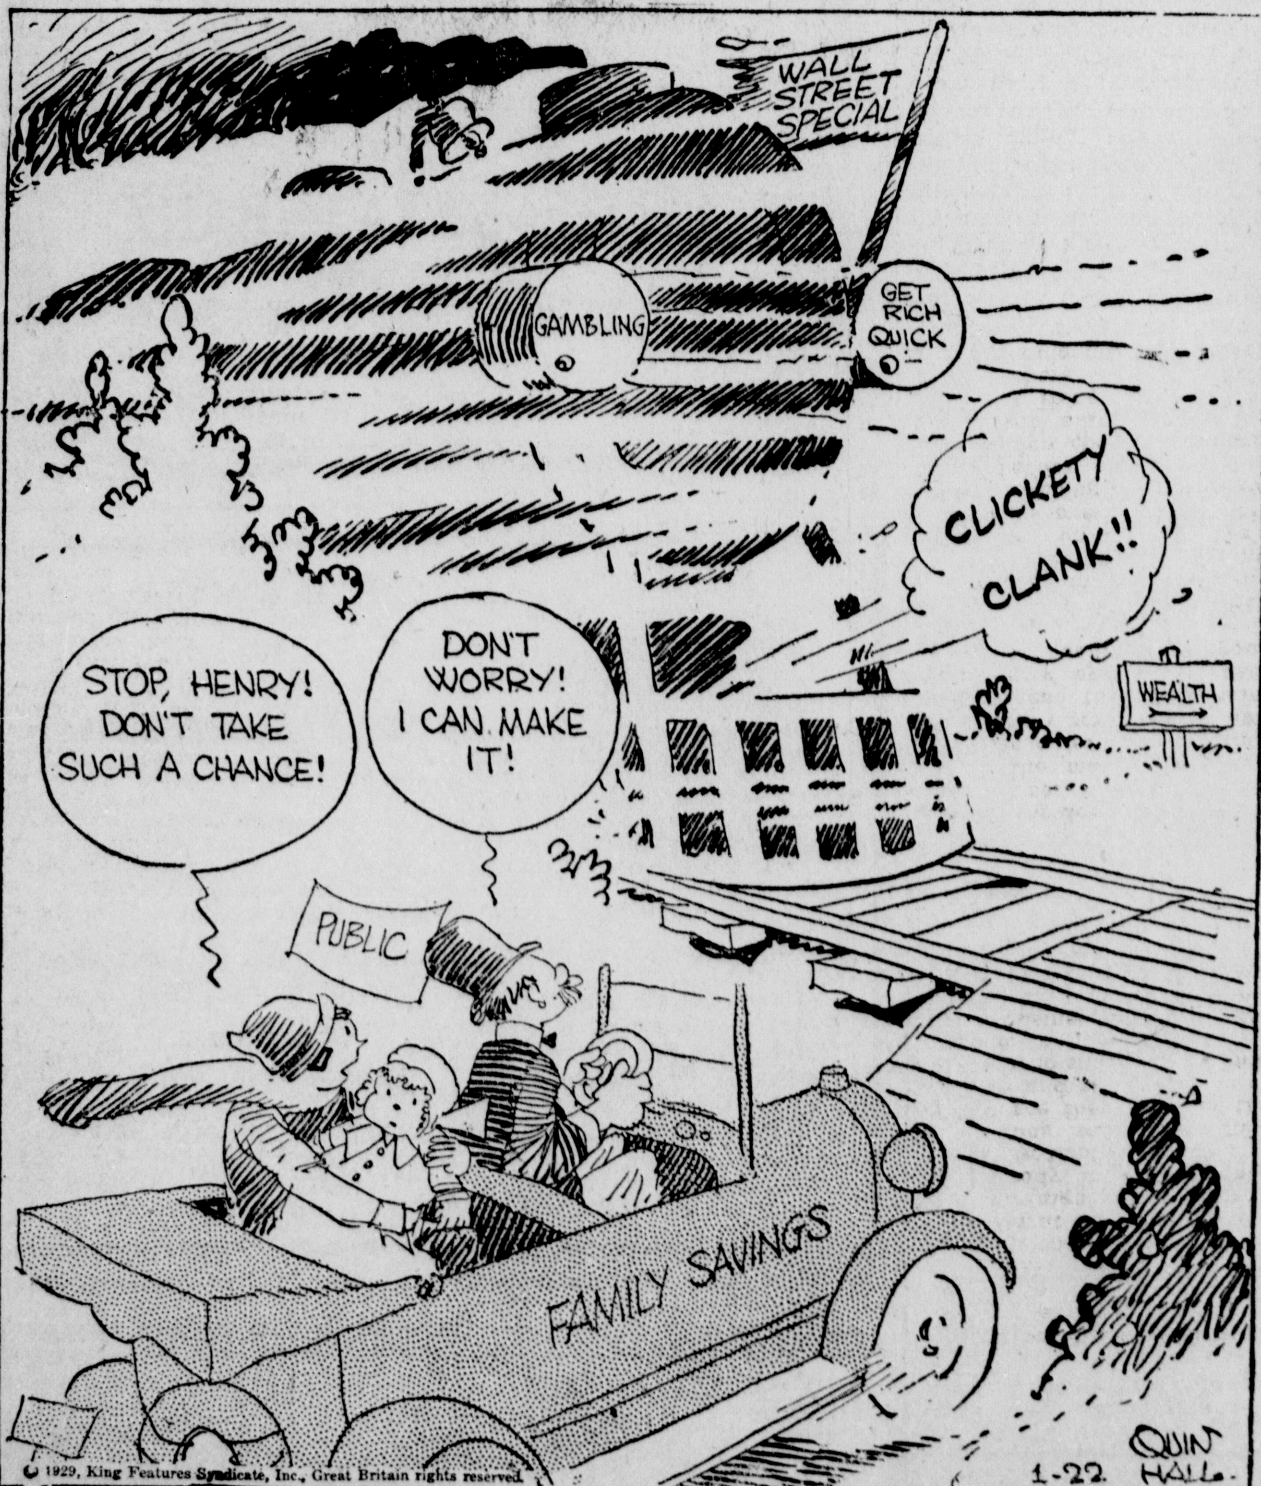

Who follows in His train?" From the young people in the rear of the church came a surge of song, in which she could hear the swift, marching feet, see the banners waving in the charge of youth and justice against bigoted age.

Irene turned to give one exultant look at the rear of the house when the song was ended, and then she clutched Will Lundy's arm. There against the wall at the back, his arms folded, his big head thrown back in defiance, stood Buck Evans. Had the pastor seen him? Yes, he was looking right at him.

The pastor said quietly that the chairman of the board of deacons had a report to make.

For the first time in several years Colleen Moore and Antonio Moreno are to be seen in the same picture. "Synthetic Sin," which comes to the Lyceum theatre for Sunday only, was the occasion of a reunion of these popular players, their last screen appearance in the same cast having been in "Look Your Best," one of Rupert Hughes' stories. Moreno heads Miss Moore's supporting cast in the character of a playwright, and participates in humorously exciting adventures that climax in a desperate gang war that is cleverly combined with a laughable situation.
